

Alternative Medicines' Point of View: Is a COVID-19 Vaccine a Good Idea?

By Dr. Russell Blaylock

President Trump recently stated that he wants to fast-track a vaccine for COVID-19. Unfortunately, he is getting some very bad medical advice. A growing body of scientific evidence suggests that having been vaccinated can greatly increase a person's risk of a harmful reaction if they are exposed to viruses circulating in the environment. Vaccination also raises your risk of dying when exposed to these viruses.

This was first noticed in people who had been vaccinated against the SARS virus. When they were subsequently exposed to the SARS virus in the environment, many developed severe lung damages. This reaction was seen far more often in vaccinated than in unvaccinated people, in essence, the vaccine put people at greater risk of dying.

A recent study funded by the Pentagon found that people who had been vaccinated with the flu shot were 36 percent more likely to contract a coronavirus. Another study found that children younger than 18 who received a flu vaccination had a dramatically higher risk of developing serious viral pneumonia soon after. Their risk was far greater than unvaccinated children.

This was confirmed by an Australian study that found children who received the flu vaccination had a 55 percent greater risk of developing a lung infection soon after. Another study found that vaccinated children had a 4.4 times greater risk of developing a serious viral lung infection by a non-influenza virus.

A number of such studies have appeared in the medical literature, yet we just keep vaccinating people as if this information never existed.

The nation's elites are already planning to make any COVID-19 vaccine that is developed mandatory for everyone – even though at a recent international meeting of the scientists involved in vaccine development it was conceded that there were no adequate studies on the safety of any vaccine. A fast-tracked vaccine will pose even greater risk, and the complications could ruin the lives of millions of people
